THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL.

DALLAS, November 21.—It is now generally admitted that there will be more cotton picked in the county this season than there was last year. The season for gathering the crop has been a most propitious one, and the colors and shapes of the cotton are very well suited in this section of the state. Prices have also been remunerative to the producer, and better than they were a year ago at this date, and less low grades are offered on the market now than then. Prices in this city sympathetic with those in other markets, are lower than a week ago and bidding rules here now are about 9.33¢.

The receipts of grain by wagon are gradually increasing, particularly of corn, which they are still light and not equal to the demand. Railroad receipts are below expectations. Farmers find it almost impossible to secure grain enough to fill their orders, but they are using their best efforts to secure larger arrivals. Prices for corn have remained steady, but firm. There is little wheat remaining, and probably none left in the market. The receipts of rye and barley are light. Very little millet seed offered on the streets, and there is no demand for it at this time. There continues to be good arrivals of flour from the north, and from Mexico from this city, and to all parts of northern and western Texas. Bran is in great supply at previous prices. Good, bright hay is not plentiful and prices are better.

The receipts of cattle have fallen off until there are hardly any to supply local wants, and the eastern counties of the state, Price have advanced, and are firm. The market is here of veal calves. There is an active demand for good mutton sheep, and the supply is light. Hams are being overstocked. Very few mow cows are exposed for sale, and those that are offered are readily taken. Heavy horses and mules command good figures, and are scarce on the market. Driving horses, cattle and adapted to various purposes, are always scarce. Ponies are in good demand. Stock animals and horses are high and high. Live stock of all kinds command good prices.

The wool trade is over for the season, but what little is offered sells at quotations. Green hives bring always well, and do good in the market. There is not much demand for damaged hives, but the market remains firm.

Up to this time the receipts of game have been light, and very little venison, antelope or buffalo have been offered for sale. Small game is more plentiful, but the market generally are not well supplied with specimens of kind. Prices continue high.

The coin weather of the past week has greatly lessened the stocks of green vegetables, and they are advancing in price. There is a small supply of potatoes in the market, and the weather becomes too hot to render shipping from the north unprofitable of an advance.

Sweet potatoe-sold on the streets for fifty cents to one dollar per bushel, and are from the south, and from the market.

There is no change in cabinet.

Good country butter is really scarce, and eggs are still scarcer. New turkeys are offered on the streets, and chickens are in good demand, but not willing to advance price. The market continues to be well supplied with fruits of all kinds. The prices of apples are firm, oranges have declined a cent, while lemons are a shade higher. California fruits are about the same, and prices remain unchanged.

There is a good demand for the stalls, and prices for it, if anything, are higher and firmer.

The business of the city is heavy, both in the wholesale and retail lines, but there is no special change to note in prices of leading articles.

GRAIN AND BREADSTUFFS.

The receipts of grain in this city to-day were nearly all by wagon, only two cars of corn coming by rail. The market is active, and the receipts of 2,000 bushels of corn, 40 bushels of oats, and 20 bushels of wheat. The shipments were five cars of corn, one car of oats, and two cars of mixed corn and oats. Prices in this city remain steady and firm.
